Clean Energy NH Announces New Deputy Director
Stay Work Play NH Veteran Moves to Growing Clean Energy Organization

CONCORD, N.H. – Clean Energy New Hampshire (CENH) is adding to its team with the appointment of Beth San Soucie as Deputy Director.

San Soucie most recently served as the Director of Communications at Stay Work Play New Hampshire, a nonprofit dedicated to attracting and retaining more young people to New Hampshire. By leading the planning, development, and implementation of the organization’s marketing and communications strategies, she brings an understanding of the important issues impacting the state’s young residents and future workforce.

“At our core, we’re an organization that deeply understands New Hampshire’s political and social landscape, and uses that knowledge to push for meaningful progress towards the clean energy transition,” said Sam Evans-Brown, CENH’s Executive Director, “That’s why Beth’s expertise is such a perfect fit, and why we’re so thrilled that she’ll be helping us tell our story in a way that will help to attract new members and supporters.”

In the role as Deputy Director, San Soucie will be responsible for overseeing internal matters at CENH, outreach and communications to the organization’s membership base, event planning oversight and project management, working in concert with the Executive Director in cultivating donors and other funding opportunities, and assisting with the management of the organization’s digital and traditional media presence.

“It is an honor to join the team at Clean Energy NH as their mission deeply resonates with me,” said San Soucie. “I look forward to collaborating with community and business leaders to continue CENH’s progress in building a clean energy future in the Granite State. This is an incredible opportunity to be part of an organization leading revolutionary change in New Hampshire.”

Clean Energy NH is the state’s leading clean energy advocate and educator, representing over 500 clean tech businesses, municipalities, and individuals. Clean Energy NH is a non-partisan, 501(c)(3) non-profit that provides services and resources to support the Granite State’s clean tech industries, policymakers, and communities.
